Envoy Witte Arrives.

Envoy Witte plunged into the strenuous life immediately on arriving in New York yesterday afternoon. He was interviewed by a young army of reporters before he had time to leave his ship. He was photographed at every step. He was met by a reception committee and presented with Slavonic bread and salt on a silver salver and an American speech of welcome. He was surrounded by crowds of free people. He was nearly wrecked in a hansom cab. Finally, he was driven past the flag of Japan and the smiling envoy of the power with which his country is to treat. He has thus had more than a taste, a full mouthful, of the new civilization to contrast with that he left behind him in "Petersburg."

Conflicting statements, both apparently authorized, bring Mr. Witte to New York in a double attitude. He hopes for peace and despairs of it. He has come with all the power the Czar ever gives any minister extraordinary and the Czar is bound "in honor" to accept any reasonable terms which the commission may fix; yet in private conversation he expresses a firm, though reluctant, conviction that it will be impossible to do more than open the negotiations. In other words if you put your finger on him he is not there.

From the moment his appointment was announced his policy seems to have been to impress the Japanese by despairing of peace. He has gone so far that it is possible to read in reliable reports of his views a disposition to meet his associate commissioners, learn what terms they have to propose, declare them utterly "impossible," and withdraw. In that event Russia would obtain what she asked for immediately after the battle of the Sea of Japan—an outline of Japanese demands without any statement of Russian views in return.

This may prove not to be the case. It may easily be that Mr. Witte and Baron Rosen intend to make peace if they can. They have reason enough to desire it. But the likelihood, if we are to believe Mr. Witte's own declarations and attach any significance to recent proclamations of the Czar, is that the Russian envoys intend to reject without discussion terms which Japan may surely be expected to propose and may justifiably expect to obtain.

Should that happen the next envoy to speak for Japan will be General Oyama. And when General Linevitch has been soundly whipped, it may be Russia will be a little less surprised at her victor's terms and a little less reluctant to consider them.

The statesmanlike thing would be the direct thing. Russia's weakness is as well known to Japan as Japan's strength is well known to Russia. A continuation of hostilities by Russia in the hope of averting terms which seem altogether fair in the light of history passes the bounds of folly and becomes criminal. Sergius Witte has proven himself broad enough and strong enough to perceive this and act upon it. It is the sincere hope of America that he will do so.

Taking the Family Away.

This is the last month of the summer season and in it the few men who have waited so long will remove their families either to the country or seashore. While away the parents will wear negligee clothes, dabble at the newspapers and magazines, sit on broad porches and play bridge, or gossip, or go fishing. It is the youngsters, however, who will get most pleasure out of the journey. Bare legs and broad fields, shallow wading places in the creek and deeper swimming holes, orchards, a great garret for rainy days, and "pumpkin moon shines" pretty nearly complete the earthly paradise of children.

Those of us who stay here and work will be glad to know that the vacation redeems in reality all the promises of the prospect, that the gossip was harmless, the sport good, and the rest invigorating for the elders; that the play was "just fine" for the children. But there is one thing these emigrants can do before they go, or accomplish at long distance if they are already gone, which will help us stay-at-homes wonderfully. They can give $1 each, or 50 cents each, or 25 cents each to the public playgrounds and thus help provide for the summer vacations of the children who must play in the city or not at all.

Surely it will make every child's vacation happier if he shares it with other children. Surely it will make the parents more content when they see their own little ones growing brown and fat if they can reflect that they have given a modicum of health to some children less fortunate. The spring of the grass and the abundance of the orchard are unfortunately beyond the reach of the little ones who must play on the asphalt and live out of the ice box. But they can have sand piles, swings, tennis courts, and games if only the more fortunate are willing to spare a mite of their plenty.

Cleveland's First Citizen.

How do you think John D. Rockefeller would run, if, as is said to be seriously considered, he should become the Republican candidate for mayor of Cleveland?

It seems that Mr. Rockefeller feels that he is a sadly misunderstood and outrageously maligned man. He is represented as unable to understand how a few vicious writers and demagogic publicists have been able to turn the whole country against him. The Oil King regards himself as merely a benevolent assimilationist, the trustee for a considerable power and property which he is alleged to believe he is administering for the general benefit of the public. He has been looking about for a vindication for some time, and it is seriously suggested that he might not decline to make the run for mayor of his home city.

No more interesting political experiment could possibly be made than this. The whole world would look on with intense interest while the campaign was in progress. It is easy enough to understand what the opposition would say about him. But what would be urged in his favor?

Presumably, it would be insisted that he had done more for Cleveland than anybody else; that he had made it the center of one of the great industries of the world, and one of the great industrial cities of the continent; that his industries employed hundreds of thousands of men; that he was no worse than other very rich men, and that to attack him was to attack success, that deity of American life; that he had been generous with his money; that Cleveland ought to be proud of having the richest man the world had ever known for its mayor; a man who had been, and in future would surely be, if he were elected, the occasion of making the city the most advertised and talked about town in the continent.

The benevolent assimilation of Siberia goes steadily on.

The Hill railroads will now have a chance to experiment with operatorless telegraphy.

Anastasia having issued her declaration of independence, it may be assumed that the war is really on.

The evident ambition of the "Countess Olga" to introduce Russian methods into the American Navy cannot be too vigorously discouraged.

Anybody who feels that his personal beauty would be enhanced by being hit on the head with a brick, should poke that member above the surface while Attorney Jerome is still in action.

Germany, noting how little the United States enjoys being boycotted, is thinking of administering us a dose of the same sort.

It is plain enough that those people who took the trouble to hustle around and pull the necessary strings to secure invitations to join the Taft party to the Far East are being well repaid for their trouble.

Just as soon as the storm blows over the Bureau of Animal Industry—or should it be the Fish Commission?—let us look into this proposal to domesticate the whale for dairy purposes.

Great and virile country this. The crops are reported to be growing in splendid fashion despite the demoralization of the Government crop service.

That schedule of 107 questions from the Keop commission ought to hold 'em for a while and keep 'em out of mischief.

The Russian ministry, which is worrying over the high price of crude petroleum, is advised to annex Mr. Rockefeller and experiment with high prices for the refined article.

The esteemed New York Evening Post bewails the paucity of the English language for certain forms of expression. If the Post feels that way, why doesn't it drop out the small proportion of English with which it interperses its quotations from better languages?

IN THE AQUARIUM.

Where the ships of the nations gather. With their gorgeous flags unfurled. Stands Liberty high in the harbor. And lifts her torch to the world.

From the generous hand outspreading. The light sweeps far and wide. With its message of cheer to the hearts of men.

But to none of Earth's creatures beside.

It gleams on the sea and the shipping. On the walls that pierce the sky— And it falls on the circling prison. Where the Least of the Brethren lie.

Captured and held in bondage. For the gaze of the idle crowd. Are they whose homes were the waters. Under the sea and cloud.

Caged in a glass-bound fathom. Where no sheltering nook may hide. Are the free little folk of the ocean. The shy little folk of the tide!

And here are the life-long captives. The monarchs from Southern lands. That roamed at will in the rivers. And lay at ease in the sands.

The years of their bondage are written. Over their mermaid tanks. Where the bleared eyes gaze through the lengths of the days. Seeking the river banks.

Remembering the green of the rushes. The breath of the wind in the grass; They are dazed by the curious rabble. And the hours that will not pass.

And the voice of the Elder Brother. Cries out from Heaven and Sea—"As unto these ye have done it. Ye have done it unto Me."

IN THE CIRCLE OF SOCIETY

MRS. MACKAY WAS MADE TRUSTEE

Millionaire's Wife Elected School Commissioner.

CAMPAIGN WAS BRISK ONE

Women Were Driven to Polls in Carriages; Husband Came Home to Vote.

Mrs. Clarence H. Mackay, society leader and wife of a millionaire, was elected trustee of the board of education of school district No. 3, Roslyn, Long Island, yesterday. John F. Remsen, who ran for trustee also, was elected. Dr. Peter D. Leys was defeated. Mrs. Mackay received 233 votes, Mr. Remsen 254, and Dr. Leys 28. Of a total of 514 votes cast 229 were straight for Mrs. Mackay and Remsen.

As soon as the result of the balloting had been made known by the election officials Dr. Leys entered a protest on the ground that the 229 straight ballots were marked simply "for trustee," and did not indicate the number of years to serve in the school district.

Vote a Record One.

The vote cast was a record one, and was brought out by the clever electioneering tactics of Mrs. Mackay and her friends. The voters were driven to the polls in cabs and carriages. Most of them were women.

Clarence H. Mackay went to the school in his automobile, having come especially from Saratoga to vote for his wife. As Mr. Mackay alighted he remarked:

"My, but this is fine Republican weather. Do you think we'll win?"

Mr. Mackay took a ticket with the name of his wife on it. When he came out of the schoolhouse he was met by Dr. Leys, and the two shook hands, and after talking about things in general, Mr. Mackay said: "I hope Mrs. Mackay wins."

Mrs. Mackay's Ticket.

Mrs. Mackay's candidacy has been a remarkable one in many ways. That she, a woman of great wealth, should care about the schooling of the little Roslyn children at first tickled the pride of the villagers. After a while it occurred to some of the town gossips that it was condescension. This tickled, and when Augustus S. Dowling, third assistant commissioner of education of the State of New York, at Mrs. Mackay's suggestion came down from Albany and made an investigation of the school, which the board of education and parents of the children had thought quite enough for anybody, and ordered many changes with some sharp criticisms. There were sharp protests, although the women generally sustained Mrs. Mackay.

New Commissioner Chaired.

Mrs. Clarence H. Mackay received the news of her election as school trustee in Roslyn at the Postal Telegraph office, in Saratoga in the afternoon.

"I am charmed," she said, "but I have nothing further to say at present."

ENGAGEMENT ANNOUNCED

Tomorrow at the summer home of her parents, where an informal entertainment will be given in honor of her twenty-second birthday, the engagement will be announced of Miss Gladys Lawson, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas W. Lawson, to Eben Blaine Stanwood.

Miss Lawson is a charming young woman, a member of the Junior Varsity Club, and a great favorite in society. Mr. Stanwood comes from regal blue blood stock. His granduncle was the late James G. Blaine, the famous Secretary of State, and his father is Francis M. Stanwood, a wealthy broker.

He is a member of the Puritan and Hasty Pudding clubs and a devout admirer of athletics.

The date for the wedding has not yet been set, but it is understood that it will take place some time in October—in any event, before the winter sets in.

A marriage of interest to Washingtonians occurred last Monday in Alexandria, when William H. Henderson, of this city, was wedded to Mrs. Eleanor Russell, of St. Mary county, Maryland.

The ceremony was conducted by the Rev. H. J. Culler in the rectory of St. Mary's Catholic Church. The bride, Miss Russell, who came from Washington for the occasion, returned immediately afterward to this city.

Miss Mary F. Thomas, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. V. B. Thomas, was married yesterday to Nathaniel Preston Goulder, of Petersburg, Va. The ceremony took place in the home of the bride's parents, the Rev. Carl G. Doney, pastor of Hamline M. E. Church, officiating. Immediately afterward the bride and groom left for their wedding trip, which will include visits to Philadelphia, New Germantown, N. J. and other points in the East before returning to their home in this city. They will be at home after September 1 at 154 Ninth street northwest.

The wedding of Miss Cecile McLaurine, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. W. McLaurine, of this city, and Paul Franklin Mackay, of Oklahoma, formerly of this city, will take place in the home of the former's parents on U street next Monday, August 7. It will be a simple home wedding, the young people departing soon afterward for their new home in the West.

Dr. Percy Heckling and his family have left Washington, to be gone during the month of August. They will make a trip through New York and Pennsylvania.

Among the Washingtonians registered on the Montreal-Quebec-Saguenay line are Mrs. M. E. Burks and Mr. and Mrs. W. J. McNulty.

William S. Skinner and C. W. Curry are among the recent arrivals in Asbury Park. Mr. Skinner is at the Marlborough, and Mr. Curry is a guest at the Brunswick.

Mrs. Hermann Pelzman is spending a month in Atlantic City. She is accompanied by her children, Sadie, Rose, Albert, Louis, and Robert, and her niece, Miss Helen Schwartz.

Mr. and Mrs. S. H. Wagner are spending a few days in Baltimore, where they are stopping at the Stafford.

Mrs. T. E. Kramer and Miss Miriam Kramer, wife and daughter of Dr. Thomas B. Kramer, are spending a few weeks on their farm on the York road, just outside of Baltimore.

ROOSEVELT FAMILY ENTERTAIN RIXEYS

Strong Friendship Between White House Occupants and the Surgeon General and His Wife—Grant Lefarge, the Artist, at Oyster Bay.

President and Mrs. Roosevelt continue to entertain their personal friends at their summer home, Sagamore Hill.

There are usually some friends of the President's family spending a day or two at Oyster Bay and just at the present time the Surgeon General of the Navy, Dr. P. M. Rixey, and Mrs. Rixey are visiting the President and Mrs. Roosevelt. There is a strong friendship between the two families and the interchange of visits is always pleasantly anticipated.

Grant Lefarge was a guest of the President last night. Mr. Lefarge is the artist who designed the "trophy room" in the President's home and who superintended the erection of an additional building last year.

Rear Admiral and Mrs. Silas Terry and Miss Terry, were guests at dinner last night of Mrs. Roswell D. Hitchcock, of New York, in Narragansett. Rear Admiral and Mrs. Harris, of Washington, were among the guests who visited with Admiral and Mrs. Terry.

William F. Hitt is in Newport, where he is visiting A. Lanfear Norris.

Gen. Nelson A. Miles and his son, Lieut. Sherman Miles, have arrived in Berlin, where they will remain a week or more.

Yesterday was the birthday of Senator George Peabody Wetmore, and his daughters and son, W. S. K. Wetmore, went down to New York from Newport to spend the day with him.

The Senator, who was recently operated on, is improving and was particularly pleased to have the visit of his children yesterday.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas F. Walsh and Miss Evelyn Walsh are now in Narragansett Pier to attend the polo games. They made the trip from Newport in an automobile and were accompanied by several guests of the cottage colony in Newport.

Vincent Walsh has become an enthusiastic chauffeur and has just made a fine record run from Boston to Newport. Mr. Walsh made the trip in the new Mercedes car belonging to his sister, and covered the distance in one hour and fifty-nine minutes.

The machine was in fine trim and because of the recent rains in that section of the country, the roads were in excellent condition. Miss Walsh is an equally enthusiastic motorist and is thoroughly enjoying her new machine.

Gen. Frederick Dent Grant will go to Newport on Saturday, where he will be the guest of Mrs. James P. Ketchikan. His hosts will give a reception on Saturday in honor of the general.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward A. Mitchell entertained at luncheon yesterday in the Point Judith Club, at Narragansett, for Mrs. Louis E. Stoddard and Miss Laughlin, of Pittsburg, who are at the Pier for the polo games.

Charlesmagne Tower, American ambassador to Germany, gave a dinner recently on the terrace of the Hotel Bristol, in Berlin, when his guests were Postmaster R. W. Wilcox, of New York, and Mr. Pearson, of the same city.

Mrs. Lawrence Townsend, wife of the former United States minister to Belgium, is again in America after a long stay in Europe.

A delightful dance was given last night at the Malvern Hotel, Bar Harbor. Mrs. Nicholas Anderson, Representative and Mrs. H. Kirk Porter, and Mrs. Postlewait were among the guests.

MARRIAGE LICENSES.

Hamilton, Md., and Louise McCoy, 20, District of Columbia.

Thomas N. Lynn, 28, and Carrie L. Walker, 21, both of Orange county, Va. Richard Higdon, 28, and Ida George, 22.

Wilson Eppley, 23, and May M. Sullivan, 19.

William Botts, 32, and Ada Powell, 18.

William H. Brown, 59, and Alice Dorsey, 40.

Arthur R. Glasgow, 23, and Lena J. Senesch, 21.

Arthur A. West, 25, and Carrie Blane, 24.

Henry J. Taylor, 26, and Minnie P. Bryce, 28.

Howard E. Sangston, 26, and Margaret Hilbus, 25.

May Compel Venezuela To Pay American Claims

All Depends Upon Investigations of Special Commissioner Calhoun, Who Sails for Caracas on Saturday Fully Instructed.

W. W. Russell, the new United States minister to Venezuela, who has been in this country on his honeymoon and also as a witness in the Bowen-Loomis case, will sail for Caracas from New York on Saturday. The same ship will carry W. J. Calhoun, of Chicago, the special commissioner appointed by the President to go to Caracas to make a thorough investigation of the precise standing of all the American claims against Venezuela including that of the New York and Bermudez Asphalt Company, and how they will be affected by the arrangement recently entered into by the Venezuelan government with the foreign bondholders.

Mr. Calhoun goes as a direct representative of the President and expects to be absent about two months. He received very full and explicit instructions from Mr. Roosevelt as to the scope of his inquiries.

During the last few years there have arisen many disputes between this Government and that of Venezuela over the claims of American citizens. Scandals and hints of scandals have complicated the situation. The charges and counter-charges made by Messrs. Bowen and Loomis, both of whom were previously United States ministers at Caracas, have been made respecting the standing of several of the claims being urged against Venezuela.

The President proposes to lay before Congress the whole subject of our relations with Venezuela for such action as it may see fit to take, but before doing so he wants to be absolutely certain of his facts. It is for this reason that he has appointed Mr. Calhoun, a lawyer outside of the Government service, who is a trained observer, and who can approach the whole subject in an entirely unprejudiced way. If the report to be made by Mr. Calhoun should sustain the charge that President Castro's government has unjustly discriminated against American citizens, it is quite possible that the President's message to Congress will recommend that the United States take forcible measures to compel Venezuela to meet the American claims.

Mr. Calhoun will be assisted in his work by Frank L. Joannini, an accomplished Spanish scholar, detailed from the Bureau of Insular Affairs.

Preliminary plans for the National Food Show and Industrial Exposition which is to be held in Convention Hall December 4 to 16 were arranged at a meeting of the Retail Grocers' Protective Association, which held a business session and smoker last night in the banquet room of the Jolly Pat Men's Club, 933 D street northwest.

The food show has been contemplated by the local grocers for some time past, and they have been working quietly on their scheme, but at last night's meeting announcement was made that the show was an assured fact.

C. H. Green and E. J. Rowe, of New York, have been engaged to manage the affair. They were present last night and conferred with the officers of the association in regard to the exposition.

P. B. Otterback, of 1104 Eleventh street southeast, and Charles J. Magill, street southeast, have the exposition in Convention Hall. It will be a food and industrial display, particularly the former, at which will be shown all manner of food products and delicacies. The association has already provided for ample room for sightseers in Convention Hall, which will be neither overcrowded nor understocked with exhibits. Among the novel features already arranged for will be a model laundry, tearoom, domestic science department, dairy, etc., in full operation, to say nothing of other features of the same order.
